Uncle Sam And Japan Unable To Agree On California Controversy

COMMISSION UNACCEPTABLE TO THE STATE DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 27.—(By the Associated Press).—Administration officials continue to decline to discuss for publication any of the phases of the negotiations with Japan growing out of the proposed anti-Japanese land law in California, but the impression has gone out that a proposal from Tokyo that the question be referred to a joint commission for solution would be unacceptable.

The conversations regarding the California law, which have been going on between Ambassador Shidehara, of Japan, and state department officials are continuing and so far as has been learned the proposal for a joint commission has not been formally communicated to Washington by the Japanese government.

What progress, if any has been made in the negotiations, has not been disclosed. The attitude of the state department is described as one calculated to prevent the development of a feeling of alarm in the United States that might approach even approximately that which appears to be growing in Japan.

Conflicting opinions of both American and Japanese authorities on international law are said to have made the task of the state department officials and the Japanese ambassador more difficult. Proponents of the California law say that California is enacting a measure barring the Japanese from owning land in that state would be refusing to the Japanese in this country rights or privileges which are not refused by Japanese law to American in Japan.

Japan contends that the California law, which is to be voted on in November, is discriminatory because it does not apply to all foreigners like as does the Japanese law. The suggestion has been made in Tokyo that after the law is enacted, it would be tested in the United States supreme court. Some Japanese authorities on international law doubt that this will be effective as they state frankly that the California law conflicts with the constitution nor with the terms of the American-Japanese treaty.

PREDICTS GENERAL CUT IN FOOD PRICES

CHICAGO, September 27.—A general reduction in food prices was predicted today by Sol Westfeldt, president of the Retail Grocers' Association, who excepted only eggs and butter from what he said would be a steady decline. He said high interests on bank loans made price cutting necessary for producers to move their crops.

Mr. Westfeldt said canned goods now being packed must be lowered in price to move it; that coffee had recently dropped 10 cents a pound and that he looked for cheaper bread because of lower flour prices. Flour was at a minimum in some cases lower than 1911 prices, he said.

"Although it may mean less to some producers and distributors," Mr. Westfeldt said, "the nation as a whole will benefit and a return to normal conditions will be effected."

RUSSIANS FALL BACK

WARSAW, Sept. 27.—Grodno, an important city in northwestern Russia, near the Lithuanian frontier, has been captured by Polish troops after heavy fighting, says an official statement issued here this morning.

A large number of prisoners and much war material were taken by the Poles. It is said. For some days Polish forces have been gradually working their way around the city, which has been the concentration point of Russian Bolshevik forces on the northwestern Polish front.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—A retirement by the Russians in the Grodno region is admitted by the Russian Soviet war office in London's official statement on military operations received by wireless today. An advance to the southeast of Grodno, however, where the capture of Volokysk is claimed, is recorded by the statement, which reads:

"In the Grodno region, after a number of battles, our troops were withdrawn to the right bank of the Niemna. After fierce fighting we captured Volokysk and a number of villages several miles westward."

ROOT BACK FROM EUROPE
NEW YORK.—Elin Root returned from Europe where she had been in step to establish permanent court of justice at Hague conference.

New York Fog Bound

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—More than 25 large steamships, including all the battle ships of the Atlantic fleet, were anchored in the outer harbor early today, unable to escape their way through the dense fog that has enveloped this vicinity since Friday night.

A number of trans-Atlantic liners, including La Savoie, Philadelphia, the United States transport Northern Pacific, the U. S. S. Frobenius and others, were halted on their inbound voyage. Some of these have anchored since Saturday morning.

The Atlantic squadron has been attempting to enter the harbor since yesterday.

WAR VETERANS ASSEMBLE IN CLEVELAND AMERICAN LEGION OPENS CONVENTION

CLEVELAND, O., September 27.—More than 1,000 delegates were in their seats in the Hippodrome Theatre this morning when Franklin D'Olier, national commander, called to order the second annual convention of the American Legion, approaching in importance the national sessions of the big political parties. The floor of the theatre resembles one of the big political conventions, state standards and penumbras designating seats allotted to the various delegations.

Commander D'Olier presented Rev. Francis J. Kelly, of Troy, N. Y., the "fighting chaplain," who delivered the invocation. Following the national chaplain, Mayor William S. Fitzgerald welcomed the visitors and delegates in behalf of the city.

The convention prepared to adjourn at noon to witness the parade this afternoon of approximately 20,000 former service men and women, the feature of the three days' convention.

One of the first important matters to be presented was a report of the credentials committee. Two questions to decide are:

Shall each department be allowed only its two delegates at large and one additional delegate for each over 1,000 paid up members, or shall it be allowed one additional delegate for each 1,000 paid up members or major fraction thereof?

Shall the posts to foreign countries be allowed votes in the convention?

Pending decision of these two questions the voting strength at the convention ranged between 1,047 and 1,102.

Legion organizations in Mexico, Panama, Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, Argentina, Belgium, British Isles, Canada, Chile, China, Cuba, France, Guatemala, Japan, Poland, Samoa and Santo Domingo were involved.

The executive committee decided last night that representation in the convention should be on the basis of paid up national dues August 28 last, which on that date totalled $18,650. There was strong objection to this ruling by many states, particularly New Jersey, where it was said the membership had been increased by eleventh hour efforts from 22,000 to 20,000.

National dues for more than 1,000,000 have been received now, it was said.

R. G. Cretion, director of organization for the Legion said more than 2,000,000 men have joined the legion.

Violent Explosion In Cork

CORK, Sept. 27.—A violent explosion shook this city about two o'clock this morning. It was followed by the rattle of rifle fire in various parts of the business district.

When the townspeople ventured forth later in the morning after the curfew had closed, they found the main thoroughfare, Patrick street, littered with glass and the front of a large department store, which is said to employ a large number of young Sinn Feiners completely wrecked as it lay home.

Windows were smashed in the upper stories of almost every store in the vicinity.

BELFAST, September 27.—The shooting by snipers and others which occurred in the center of Belfast last night caused a panic among the crowds promenading on Royal avenue, the city's main artery, after church hours. The disturbance followed the shootings of Saturday night and early Sunday.

day in which one policeman was killed and two others were wounded, followed by the assassination of three civilians in reprisal by parties of masked men.

The opening incident of Sunday night's disorders occurred when snipers in side streets of the Sinn Fein quarter fired into the street. A tram car came into the line of fire and there was great alarm among the passengers, who crouched on the floor.

The rush from the side streets caused the crowd on Royal avenue to swell to large proportions and a stampede was created, when volleys suddenly rang out apparently from the Sinn Fein side streets, the firing rapidly increasing in volume. As the crowd moved along Royal avenue in wild order, a number of shots were discharged, creating a panic about the Castle Street junction, the most crowded spot in the city. With the arrival of police conditions quieted down.

Sound Warning On Fake Fruit Beverages

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Warning against "fake" fruit beverages which have flooded the soft drink market since the advent of prohibition, was issued today by the public health service.

Many of the orange beverages now being sold, it was said, consist only of sweetened carbonated water, flavored with a little oil from the peel of oranges and artificially colored.

The department of agriculture has ruled that the provisions of the pure food act will be held to have been violated in case such drinks are sold under trade names which lead the purchaser to believe they contain the edible portion or juice of the fruit named.

Rough Going Ahead For The Profiteers

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 27.—In a review of business conditions in the fourth federal reserve bank district for the month of September, D. C. Willis, chairman of the board, today issued a warning that the laws of man have been swept into the discard and the laws of competition, the natural inflexible forces which maintain the equilibrium of all things, are now at work and cannot be transgressed without payment of penalty for violation.

"The report calls attention of the 'profiteer'—the labor as well as the business 'profiteer'—to the fact that they will find rough going ahead."

"The business 'profiteer,' the report states is being forced out by an outraged public, and the labor profiteer is finding it more difficult to maintain his position of 'more pay and less work.'"

The report says there is less apprehension in business circles than there was thirty days ago and that there is no longer an acute scarcity of goods or labor.

Marked improvement in transportation and shipping conditions has been the outstanding feature of the iron and steel situation, production rising steadily during the present month.

Iron ore has been going forward to the interior furnaces at a faster rate during the past few weeks and coal is moving better than it was a year ago.

Ohio Towns Turn Back Their Clocks

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27.—Most Ohio municipalities which look up daylight savings last spring, either already have set their time back or will do so this week.

Greenwich, late in October, will be the last large city to return to regular central standard time. October 1 is the date upon which most of the smaller cities which have not already done so are to turn back clocks. October 1 will mark the change of time in Toledo while Columbus is slated for central time again next Sunday.

Cleveland and other eastern and northeastern Ohio points which normally operate on eastern time did not adopt the daylight savings plan. As was the case last winter, half of Ohio will again operate on eastern and half on central time.

Wilson To Get In Utah Solemn Referendum On League Of Nations

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright by Times Publishing Co.)
UTAH, Sept. 27.—Woodrow Wilson will get the state of Utah to referendum of the League of Nations which he so earnestly desires and what is more the verdict will be favorable to the League. For no matter what reasons other states may have for casting their electoral votes for Harding or Cox, the fundamental reason why Utah is going Democratic this year is her fervent interest in the League of Nations and has not changed his position to that of Senator Johnson. If he is re-elected, as seems likely at this writing, it will be because the people of Utah recognize that he has done things for them and is a leader in his party and therefore in a position to do more things for them.

Million Wellings, also a Mormon, is the Democratic nominee for Senator. He has been in Congress and behind him is the cry for new blood in the of Nations for the being. They will vote for Cox because Senator Harding has apparently taken the position of Senator Johnson of California of opposing the League.

There is an active campaign here against the League, but it has not made much of an impression. The president of the Mormon church presided at Governor Cox's meeting, but it is reported to be in favor of the re-election of Senator Smoot. Republicanism has been for the League with reservation and has not changed his position to that of Senator Johnson. If he is re-elected, as seems likely at this writing, it will be because the people of Utah recognize that he has done things for them and is a leader in his party and therefore in a position to do more things for them.

NEW REAL ESTATE COMPANY

A new real estate company has recently been formed, known as The Cecil Miller-Burnett Company. This company will engage in the real estate business with offices at room 25 First National Bank Building.

The new company is composed of Cecil S. Miller and C. A. Burnett. Mr. Miller's long experience in the building of houses and the purchasing of materials has made him an efficient judge of real estate values and his advice and knowledge along these lines will be a valuable asset to the new firm and to their clients. His activities along the building lines are best evidenced by the late development of North High and Mount streets, where he has erected and sold many beautiful homes within the last few years.

Mr. Burnett will have active charge of the office. He was for several years manager of the Portsmouth Clay Products Company, and since the merger of this company with The H. Lee Lumber Company, he has had charge of the Builders' Supply Department of the latter concern.

Mr. Burnett's technical knowledge of building materials make him a competent judge of their uses and values. The policy of this firm will be to render honest and efficient service to its clients.

R. B. Lukemire, for many years connected with the H. Lee Lumber Company, and now serving as treasurer, is to succeed Mr. Burnett as manager of the Builders' Supply Department, and his thorough knowledge of the lumber, mill work and builders' supply business, assures their many customers that this particular line, in line with the general lumber and mill work business, will be given the same care and attention as is displayed in all lines handled by this well known firm.

STRENUOUS PROGRAM FOR COX IN NEBRASKA

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Sept. 27.—The league of nations and agricultural problems were prominent topics of Governor Cox, Democratic presidential candidate for the Nebraska campaign, which opened early today at North Platte and comprised seven rear platform and two extended speeches, the latter this afternoon at Lincoln and tonight in the auditorium at Omaha.

Across the entire state, including brief talks at Lexington, Kearney, Grand Island, Aurora, York and Newark, the governor leaving Cheyenne, Wyo., early this morning, had one of the most strenuous programs of his western trip, the last week of which began today.

Nebraska Democrats laid out a gala tour for the candidate through the home state of William J. Bryan and Senator Hitchcock, administration leader in the treaty fight. W. H. Thompson of Grand Island, Nebraska's national committee chairman, and others arranged to meet the governor's train.

Governor Cox brought information to Nebraska agriculturists regarding material as well as moral interests of farmers and livestock owners in the league. The governor's matter included reports of declining exports of agricultural products which the governor assigned to lack of European credits, falling exchange and unsettled conditions at home and abroad with the league presented as a stabilizing remedy for volume and prices. After his Omaha speech tonight, the governor will tour South Dakota Tuesday, visit Sioux Falls, S. D., St. Joseph, Mo., Atchison and Topeka, Kan., on Wednesday; spend Thursday in other Kansas cities, Friday in Oklahoma and end his western "sawing" Saturday at Kansas City.

Returning to Dayton next Sunday, the candidate expects to take two days rest and leave Wednesday on another trip, probably to Kentucky and Tennessee.

GAS IN SEWER EXPLODES

Coolidge Calls For Elimination Of Spirit Of Vindictiveness

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Governor Coolidge today sounded a call for the elimination from American public life of the spirit of vindictiveness which he said was all too prevalent.

He was addressing the sovereign grand lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in a formal welcome on the occasion of the opening of their annual communication.

"There is nothing this nation so needs today as the cultivation of a charitable spirit," the governor said. "We need to substitute the spirit of vindictiveness that is all too prevalent in American public life for the spirit of holy charity."

Alfred S. Pinkerton, past grand lodge, in the opening address, referred to the birth of the Odd Fellows' order here a hundred years ago, when the Massachusetts lodge was formed. In the old Bell-in-hand tavern, four years before the national body came into being, those, he said, were days of "personal ostracism and state restraint," in remarking on the present numbers and strength of the order.

Buildings throughout the city were daily decorated in honor of the 100,000 or more Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from all sections of the United States and Canada, who are expected to be present during the week.

AKRON MAN FEELS 15 YEARS YOUNGER

Jolly Took Three Trips To California Seeking Health—Nothing Helped Him Until He Took Tanlac—Gains 26 Pounds.

"Tanlac has not only restored my health but it's built me up twenty six pounds in weight as well, and I'm buying this bottle to send to my sister in California who seems to be suffering like I was," said Lewis Jolly, a well known carpenter living at 291 Worthington Avenue, Akron, O., while at Day's drug store recently.

"I'll tell you, I suffered terribly for seven long years with a awful case of stomach trouble and it had just about gotten the best of me when I finally ran across Tanlac. Why, I had to live on the very highest of food, such things as milk toast and raw eggs, and I didn't dare eat any vegetables or meats at all. My appetite was so poor that even the smell of food would nauseate me, and at night I was so restless I didn't know what it was to get a good night's sleep. My health was so bad I got in such a dreadful rundown condition that I took three different trips to California, but none of them seemed to help me a bit.

"When I got back from California last Spring I heard so much about Tanlac I made up my mind to try it, and I want to say right here that the medicine has simply been remarkable in my case. Why, I don't believe there is anybody that's got a better appetite than I have now and I no longer have to confine myself to eating milk toast and raw eggs, but can eat corned beef and cabbage and just anything else I want. As I said, my stomach is in such fine order that I've actually gained twenty-six pounds in weight and I feel every bit of fifteen years younger. I believe I'm exactly right when I say Tanlac's the greatest medicine ever made and I'm mighty glad to let others know what it's done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Portsmouth by the Fisher and Steteh Pharmacy and the leading druggists in every town.

"Swan Song." There is an old superstition that the swan breaks into song at the approach of death. Hence the expression "swan song" is often used to refer to a last poem or musical work written just before the composer's death. The expression has also extended to apply to the last speech of a politician before being forced into obscurity.

Begin Right Now To Conquer Your Rheumatism

The tiny pain demons that cause your rheumatism will be back on the job with the first approach of damp, wintry weather, ready to take up their battle against your comfort with renewed fury.

And if you are going to again rely upon the liniment bottle to try to rub the disease away, you will be doomed again to nothing but disappointment. A disease that can cause so much pain and suffering as rheumatism, is not on the surface of the skin, and cannot be rubbed away.

Many former of rheumatism are caused by a thin disease germ in the blood, and in such cases the only logical treatment is to search out and remove these germs from the blood.

For this purpose there is no more satisfactory remedy than S. S. S., the fine old blood remedy that has been in use for more than fifty years, and has given such general satisfaction for rheumatism. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses the blood, and routes out all impurities and disease germs.

Begin taking S. S. S. today, and if you will write a complete history of your case, our medical director will give you expert advice, without charge. Address Chief Medical Director, S. S. S. Swift Laboratories, Atlanta, Ga.

Movies Opened On Sunday; Letter Sent To Officials

Six moving picture theatre managers who opened their places of amusement Sunday, Sept. 19 and were fined in Municipal Court Friday, and J. G. With of the Strand opened their place yesterday, it being the first time for the Strand.

So far no action has been taken looking toward their arrest. On the other hand, those opposed to the Sunday opening of amusement places, say that there is a law against the opening and that it can and will be enforced.

Notices of arrest for the first offense were made shortly after the shows opened Sept. 19 and after affidavits had been filed against the managers.

Saturday the Sunday amusement proposition was brought to the attention of Safety Director St. Straus, Mayor William Gableman and Chief of Police Blair. A letter being received by Mr. Straus stating that copies had been ordered sent to the mayor and chief of police. The letter was from the office of Blair and Blair, and called the attention of the city officials to the law governing Sunday amusements and adding that action could be taken against officials who did not see to it that the law was carried out.

This morning when Mayor Gableman was asked concerning the letter, he said that he did not receive any, but that he had heard of one received by Mr. Straus, and added that the city officials were taking their instructions from the city solicitor and not the law firm of Blair and Blair.

Mr. Straus, in speaking of the letter said that he had received it and that he had turned it over to the chief of police. The safety director said that the way he understood the law was that arrests could be made twenty days after complaint was made, and that he did not know that complaint had yet been made about the opening Sunday.

Judge Blair this morning said that he had been at the mayor's office Sunday evening and that he had talked to the chief of police and eight force of police and had asked that the managers of the Lyric and Exhibit be arrested and the places closed. According to Attorney Blair, the chief wanted him to sign a blank affidavit and he would have the managers brought in, but this he declined to do, adding that he wanted the arrests made and action taken at once.

In speaking of the case this morning, Judge Blair said that it was not a question of opening and closing the picture shows on Sunday, but that it was a question of law and its enforcement.

approval of Sunday movies. The officers of the law know this, and yet in the face of violations they wink their eyes and pass the job of law enforcement over to the citizenship.

"My advice to all law-abiding citizens is to remain away from picture shows seven days in the week, so long as the movies persist in breaking the laws of the state of Ohio. I would also suggest that the law-abiding citizens call upon the officers of the law, and insist that the laws are enforced. If you can't see them personally, write to them. The officers of the law are allowing the laws to be violated because they imagine a majority of the people want Sunday movies. They are doing this in the face of the fact that the people by vote registered their disapproval of Sunday movies—and the officers of the law should either enforce the law or quit. One thing sure, officials dare not run current to public sentiment."

his morning sermon. In his remarks Rev. Butler dwelt mostly on the handling of the movie managers case in court this last Friday, saying: "The Christian folk of the city were losing respect for the court by the action taken in saying that the movie had as much right to operate as other violators, such as the gasoline filling stations, drug stores, etc."

Rev. Butler added that it was a bad thing for a community when the people lose respect for the court.

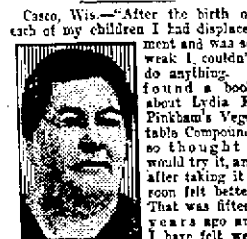

He also had a few words to say relative to Mayor William Gableman in connection with the Sunday movies, saying that he had overheard the mayor say in a conversation with another man on the street, "that he did not care what the movies do." Rev. Butler in closing his remarks concerning the mayor, said "If the mayor operating his pools and running his baseball team on Sunday, we can not expect much else."

MISS DOLLY WISE

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Miss Wise—Concerning the recent act of the Picture Show managers, in operating their places of business on Sunday, and the consequence of paying the penalty in court, I would like to state that I have no relative or intimate friend engaged in the picture show business, nor am I interested in a financial way in any picture show. Neither have I a knowledge of the technical points of the law covering the operation of such exhibits. However, if it is at present unlawful to operate such exhibits (and the court has just decreed that it is) then I am in favor of enforcing the law.

Furthermore I note the council (for the defense) has asserted that it is unlawful to operate such exhibits in the sale of gasoline, refreshments, etc. on Sunday. If this be true, I can not quite understand why it is permitted every Sunday although the reformers in our midst were quite ready to file affidavits against the Picture Show Managers immediately upon their first offense. In my opinion it is simply one way of forcing the public to accept a condition which a large percentage are not in favor of.

There is an excellent field for reforming right here in Portsmouth, but in order to make a success at reforming, I think that the reformers would do well to gain the confidence of those who are violating the laws of the public to accept a condition which a large percentage are not in favor of.

Why not direct their energies toward making better living conditions for some of the wage earners, some of whom are housed in hovels unfit for decent animals, direct more energy toward the elimination of vice and prostitution on our streets, (no woman is bad because she really wants to be, but rather because she has never had a helping hand extended to her from a warm sincere heart). Also toward establishing a good family house for those who are unfortunate who happen our way, and also in establishing a public bath house, where those who are handicapped by lack of bathing facilities could clean their bodies for a few cents, thus perhaps the reformers might start cleaning souls by offering an opportunity to all to keep the body clean (which, by the way, would likewise prevent many diseases caused by uncleanness.)

Educate the young men and young women of the dangers of immorality by giving class lectures. Hunt out those who think they are cutouts and open the way for them to become good Christians, (many persons shun the church because they themselves are shunned.)

There is so much more for reforming that I am surprised to see so little being done. If we are going to make Portsmouth a Mecca for law-breakers, then let them not be hampered by reformers, but if we are going to make this the Peerless City let the reformers start at the bottom.

A CITIZEN.

Dear Miss Wise—I would be very grateful if you will provide me with the name and address of the young lady who is looking for a fellow and signs herself "Dolly." I am a nice young fellow, not forty years of age yet and I'll admit I ain't got no future, but Oh! what a wonderful past.

I have Dolly's name and address but I'm particular who I give it to. If you will tell me of your life's history I may decide to let you have it.

LONESOME LUCK

Harding Praises Esch Cummins Railroad Law

ON BOARD HARDING SPECIAL.—Senator Harding made his first speech of the day on his journey to Baltimore at Altoona, Pa., where he told railroad employees that the Cummins-Esch railway law is "the best piece of legislation for the railway workers ever placed on the statute books."

The nominee also told the Altoona crowd that he loved Pennsylvania because it was a staunch Republican state, but added that when the Republican party makes mistakes the people should correct it.

"It has been reassuring," he continued, "to know that if we of our party have been unkind, you have turned to another party to correct things. I am glad you did it, because when one party has failed you should turn to another to put your wishes into execution. I have a strong notion we are going to do something of that kind very soon."

Later the nominee made a short talk at Lewisport, Pa., and greeted still another crowd at Harrisburg, where his train stopped for more than an hour. As the train passed through Pottsville during the night a switch engine side-swiped one of the cars occupied by newspaper men and jolted the senator's private car "ideal" which was directly behind. No one was injured and the only damage done was the shattering of the vestibule windows of the newspaper car.

In his Lewistown speech the nominee expressed confidence that the Republican party would be put into power at the November election, and told the crowd that it should consider the government as "your own" and not look at it from a distance or regard it as something apart from their daily lives.

Senator Harding visited Lieutenant Governor Edw. E. Beldeman at the state capital where state officials and clerks formed in line and shook hands with him.

On his return to the station the senator addressed the state chamber of commerce annual meeting. He said he wanted the nation to be righteous in its business dealings and asked American business men to make the government efficient.

BILLY WHISKERS

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

The first day Billy was allowed to walk around for only an hour. The second day he was allowed out for two hours, and by the end of that week he was turned loose without a bandage of any sort on his leg, as well as free. And how he did enjoy his freedom! He had all the children to get acquainted with, including the two little black-bantam roosters, Spunk and Saucebox, who would jump up on Bobby's leg and crow whenever they were told to do so. A dozen pigeons he had to meet and four dogs—a pair of pointers, Pointo and Patty, and a pair of greyhounds, Hurricane and Lightning—none of which had been in the barn to see him while he was sick.

It was while he was meeting all these new friends that he felt something suddenly swoop on his head, just between his horns, while something sharp dug into his hair. The other animals to whom he had been talking began to laugh and a hoarse voice from between his horns joined in the merriment. Then Billy knew that Tarwings was taking one of his surprising ways of saying good-morning.

"Of all the animals here you're the only one that hasn't given me a ride," said Tarwings, "and now I think I'll take it, get up!" He grabbed his back into the hair on Billy's forehead and spread his jet-black wings.

"Oh!" said Billy. "I'll give you a ride you won't like." So he started forward, but at once lay down and rolled. Tarwings was too quick for him, however, for as Billy went over he flew up in the air a foot or two, and as Billy came back on his feet there was a bump again, holding tight with his beak on Billy's head and more than that, and tations, and laughing more than ever. The pony and the cow were both loose in the barnyard and they enjoyed the joke on Billy as much as the dogs or the chickens or pigeons. Billy was the only one in the barnyard who did not see the fun. His next attempt to get rid of Tarwings was to run straight at the fence and but it, but once more the crow was too quick, and Billy only

The Markets

NEW YORK STOCKS
NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—With scarcely an exception, prices were substantially higher at the active opening of today's stock market. Sentiment seemed to be favorably influenced by the large gain in local federal bank reserves. Initial advances of 1 to 4 points were made by Crutcher, steel, Mexican petroleum, Great Northern, Canadian Pacific, Western Pacific, St. Louis and Inspiration copper. Equipments, motors, tobacco and the food specialties also were firm. American wool was the only issue to record more than a fractional loss, declining 1-2 points.
All gains were lost before the end of the first hour, when last week's heavy selling movement of prominent industrials and specialties was resumed. Losses of 2 to 6 points were sustained during the morning by Bethlehem, Crutcher, Republic and Nora Scott's steel, Chandler and Studebaker's motors, Hudson Locomotive, Bosch magnets, hose and leather products and Coca Cola also fell 1 to 2 points. Early advances in the rails, including various other issues, also were forfeited when industrials became heavy. Call money opened at 7 percent and British exchange was steady.
The closing was heavy.
Selling for long and short accounts, mainly the latter, caused further important prices in the stock market today, rails also realizing pressure. Sales approximated 500,000 shares.

PENNY ANTE

Collecting For The Last Game

George Audres, president and manager of the Sioux City, Ia., team, was a spectator at the All Star Camp Sherman game Sunday. He liked the play headed himself in left field and would not be surprising if he attempted to negotiate for his services.

Audres is recognized as one of the leading factors in the Western league. He says he will have a great club next year. He was handicapped this year by several players jumping the team just when the team was in a winning streak.

Mr. Audres in his day was one of the cleverest infielders in the game and today is recognized as one of the shrewdest managers in the business. He says all the teams in the Western league made money as the attendance all round was the best in the history of that Class A organization.

Mr. Audres was born and reared in the old West End, which has turned out a lot of capable, quick-thinking ball players, and his legion of friends in his old home town will be glad to see him. They have known for some time that he has long since climbed high on baseball's ladder of fame.

The strength of the All Stars was quite forcibly impressed upon the fans at Millbrook Park Sunday afternoon. When a crowd of nearly 1500 saw the heels roar home on the long end of a 14 to 5 score in their game with the 40th Infantry team of Camp Sherman.

There was never an instant when the soldier boys had a chance, despite the fact their team was as strong as clafened. The fact is, that it will take a club of much greater strength than the soldiers to make any impression when stacked up against the All Stars.

Right at the start it looked as though the struggle might be an interesting one, but once the locals got the range of Fletcher Sweatering (there was nothing to it. The way they slammed his offerings caused the fans to wonder how in thunder he ever held a job in the Florida State League, where he is said to have won 10 out of 22 games. He looked fairly good at the start, but complained of a sore arm. It is likely Floyd Smith caused that pain, for the former Western Leaguer slammed one of Sweatering's finest against the right field fence for a triple. Right there the locals saw they had the soldier boys lashed to the mast. From then on they hit whenever they cared to. Sweatering went out of the box in the sixth and Wilkerson, who was no improvement, took his place. In all the All Stars secured 18 solid blows, Smith leading with a triple and double, while Wendel Slater grabbed three triples and Fully 500 fans saw Greenup wallop the Fullerton team at Corey Island Sunday, the score being 10 to 2. Dowdy, who twirled for Fullerton was batted all over the lot. Carter pitched a good game for Greenup.

All hopes of heavyweight championship fights being staged in New York City during the next couple of months have been dashed by the boxing commission, which has just announced that for the time being Jack Dempsey and those seeking his crown would not be allowed to perform. The commission is determined to get things going smoothly before permitting the huskies to do battle and for the time being only men of the lighter classes will get a chance to splay into the limelight.

For entertainment on the program will be staged Tuesday night at Madison Square Garden. Tex Rickard will handle the show. Those who are to appear are Jack Sharkey and Joe Lynch. Abe Goldstein and Patsy Sullivan. Each bout will be 15 rounds for a decision.

The commission has requested the promoters of the Carpenter-Levinaky and the Dempsey-Brennan contests to defer action temporarily until such time as the situation will be favorable for ring engagements of this magnitude. It is believed that fights of such importance will not be concluded until about the first of the year.

Cincinnati's premier lightweight, and his defeat cost them at least $10,000. The wise ones could not see Richards with a eye glass, and figured that the Cincinnati battler would have an easy time with Blockie.

It was a terrible jolt when Richards sent Mars to the mat in the third round and probably put an end to his fighting career. Much sympathy is expressed for Mars by those who have been following him and betting on his chances. Out of fifty fights he has been defeated but about six times. Mars has earned more money than any two boxers in Cincinnati and invested all of his earnings in real-estate. He is one of the few fighters who rides around in his own machine, and even if he never puts on gloves he has enough money to live comfortably the rest of his life.

The Cleveland Indians and the Chicago White Sox released their relative positions in the American League pennant race Sunday, the former winning a hotly contested game with St. Louis 5-4 while Gleason's men soundly thrashed Detroit by a score of 8-1.

Champion Pete Herman of the heavyweight division, is going to har-Jack Sharkey from his list of prospective opponents unless it is a title match and over the marathon distance. "That fellow is a Jonah," said
 Pete, "in talking like the other day."
 "When met in Milwaukee," continued Pete, "I knew his style was not to my liking in a short match. The result was a poor fight and spoiled a fine town for me to work in. I said then that I would not meet him again unless over the long route, but here we fall for another meeting at East Chicago, Ind., and the result is the same again. Say, that fellow Sharkey never had me in serious trouble for a moment, but he made me sore by his methods of fighting and I was enough to let him get away with it.

Manager Galdeman of the All Stars announced today that the famous Mendels of Columbus would be the attraction in Millbrook next Sunday. This team has played here several times this summer and is one of the best in the Buckeye State. It recently won the baseball championship of the Capital City.

Pitcher Lyons, who is making good with the St. Louis Cardinals was sold to the Boston Red Sox by Manager Rickey by George Andrews, manager of the Sioux City team. He says Lyons is a great young pitcher and is sure to make good with the Cardinals. St. Louis a year ago secured Haines from the Western league.

In the Selby Bowling League Saturday afternoon the Strollers won two games from the Leather Grippers, and on Friday night the Rounders took 2 games of 3 from the newly organized players. These St. Louis Cardinals have been playing great ball the past four weeks. Lacey has some very promising players and with one or two more changes in his club it should be up there next year.

More credit than usual is due to Manager Wilbert Robinson, of the Brooklyn, for his success in bringing this club through. There have been cases in both major leagues where a good club has carried a manager along with them. Of course, a manager who is absolutely devoid of judgment or force of character could scarcely win out with any club, no matter how good his individual players might be.

But it is quite true that there have been a number of cases where the prevalent has been won by the superior. I think he was classy enough to keep ability of the players on the winning team with no very great assistance from the leader of the club. But an inferior manager would not have won with the Brooklyn Club this season.

The team is by no means impressive individually. Ed Konatky, the regular first baseman, is a veteran of many seasons, a steady and reliable man on the box and a fair hitter, but not sensational in any branch of play.

Doc Kilnuff, the second baseman, is a bit of a dwarf from the Cubs, who did not think he was classy enough to keep in their lineup. He is a youngster who has developed much ability under Robinson, but was not considered anywhere near the top notch in his position when the season opened. At third base Robbie is playing a converted outfielder in the person of Jimmy Johnston, who is outclassed individually by several third basemen in the league, notably by Hottel Gomb of the Reds, Frank Elyash, of the Giants, and Mel Frank Stock, of the Cardinals.

At shortstop is found the veteran Ivan Olson, who has had a stormy career in the majors, having been with several clubs, including the Reds. On speed and general form Olson is far from a classy performer, but he has plenty of courage and baseball intelligence, and he has forced himself to deliver the goods. Olson on form does not compare with such men as Bannard of the Giants; Holbrook, of the Cubs; Kopf, of the Reds, or Maranville, of the Braves. But he is a hard-just steadfast worker, game as a pitcher and a thorough student of the game.

Brooklyn defeated the New York Giants Sunday in the second game of the crucial series that will decide the National League pennant winner by a score of 4-2. Brooklyn has to win only one more game to clinch the pennant.

IS MAKING GOOD WITH THE PIRATES

Tierney, the Pirates second sacker is making good with that club. He is a swell fielder and a good hitter and was the sensation of the Western league. He was the main factor in Tulsa winning the Western league pennant this season.

Management of the Brooklyn team is having the world series tickets printed. The team has virtually clinched the pennant and its well that these arrangements be made. And to this many fans predicted that Brooklyn would not finish in the first division. The team has won 15 out of its last 18 games.

IRONTON, Sept. 27.—The prospect for a winning team in football seems very bright this year at Ironton High school. The boys have been practicing for three weeks and have another week to get ready for the first game here with Cattsburg next Saturday. Of the new men out for the team, Daniels and Raymond French are showing up strong in the backfield.

Manager Andrews has the schedule nearly completed. It will consist of nine games, five at home and four away, as follows:

Oct. 2.—Cattsburg High at Ironton.	Oct. 6.—Parrsmouth High at Ironton.

GROWING IN WEALTH

AUDITOR COBURN has not finally cast up the totals of the assessment of Scioto county, upon which the next taxes are to be paid, but he has gone far enough to have the assurance that Portsmouth's total will go over $50,000,000.

Most of us fail to realize the tremendous advance Portsmouth is making towards greatness, but the figures eloquently proclaim the fact. It is but a short time back when the duplicate was less than $25,000,000, now it is twice as much and equal to that of the whole county a decade ago.

These figures, coupled with a suggestion in the report of the grand jury accentuate a proposition frequently advanced in these columns, that the city and county are one and nothing that helps either can fail to help the other.

The grand jury would have road improvement pushed until four of the principal highways—it should have said five—are paved to the county lines. In this it recognized the fact that such betterment would benefit the whole county and the greater part of the cost of construction will fall upon the city, which contributes the same tax rates for roads as do the townships, though all the money derived thereby must be spent outside the city.

It is to the high credit of Portsmouth, that recognizing this condition it has never failed either in advocacy of good county roads. Indeed, had it not been for her activity and unanimity in that course there would not be a permanent road in Scioto county today. For it was she that furnished the first vote by which a special tax for permanent roads was levied, the outside at the time declaring rather emphatically there against. So while pride may be well held in the fact that Portsmouth is gaining so substantially in wealth and that she had both the foresight and liberality to levy tribute thereupon for improvement, outside her immediate confines, chief pleasure should be taken that the whole county has come to agreement that an essential factor in general progress is good roads.

INTELLIGENT DISCONTENT

ADIRECTOR of the United States department of labor employment service makes an optimistic report of employment prospects for the winter. There will be plenty of opportunities for work, he declares, and we hope that he is right. Especially agreeable is his statement that building construction is increasing, whether or not he is correct in saying that "buildings have at last come to the belief that neither labor nor buildings costs are going to decline. But we are a bit doubtful about the accuracy of his interpretation of the significance of "floating employment among workers who quit their jobs in hope of finding better ones." He argues that "the prevalence of this intelligent discontent is a good barometer of our prosperity; without a steady demand for labor, men would not risk quitting their jobs to find new ones."

An old and respected axiom warned that "it is always easier to get a job when you have one." The theory was that possession of a job proved a man capable of holding one; more, it was evidence that he was a desirable employee. That he was desirous of making a change to better his condition was held to be a further good recommendation. That showed he had ambition and a fair presumption was that he would perform faithfully and strive to establish his worthiness of advancement. But it was always a point in favor of the climber that he did not burn his bridges behind him; that he prudently stuck to one job until he had secured new employment. In other times it may not have been designated "intelligent discontent," but that is what it was.

The fellow who quit his job because he did not like it without another in sight or because he was sure he was fitted for something better that he did not know he could get always has been classified with "Mr. Micawber." The ambitious man is still in demand, but impatience with idleness and zeal in the performance of duties also are still regarded as best proofs that a man is ambitious. The man worth while never voluntarily puts himself in the position of "waiting for something to turn up."

Nearly every man imagines if he was making a lot of money most of his troubles would disappear.

A person may invent a lie that looks good to him, but it is another thing to get others to accept it.

The politicians who want to make hay while the sun shines will not waste any time taking straw votes.

One of the effects of the high cost of eating is the keenness with which an appetite can get into action.

The man who can come across with him campaign subscription without becoming cross is a real patriot.

The Taylor-Cass-Van Buren Race of 1818

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 27.—The Whigs put their faith in a War Hero, and for the second and last time they were victorious. Zachary Taylor was nominated because he was the popular hero of the war with Mexico. It mattered not that he had never cast a vote in his life and had never taken any interest in politics. It mattered not that the war in which he won glory and renown was conducted by the Whigs as a crime against civilization. It mattered not that he was a southern slave holder when northern Whigs were beginning to battle every day against the extension of slavery. It mattered not that Henry Clay, the leader of the Whigs, again wanted the nomination from him. Nothing mattered except that the Whigs wanted to win, that they had won in 1816 with a War Hero and an alternative slogan, and that they could do it again. Thus to General Harrison and "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" was added General Taylor and "Old Rough and Ready." These were the only men the Whig party ever put in the White House, and it is remarkable that they are the only two presidents who have died in office of natural causes.

That even the hearty attractiveness of General Taylor, the freshness of his war-time laurels, the magic of the memory of Tippecanoe, none of these things would have availed to defeat the Democrats had it not been for the factional party fight in New York state, which ultimately resulted in the formation of the Free Soil Democratic party and the candidacy of Martin Van Buren for president. Van Buren did not carry a single state, but he got a sufficient number of votes to take more than one state away from the Democratic candidate and give its electoral vote to General Taylor.

The Democratic national convention met that year in Baltimore on May 22. The nomination for President was a race between Lewis Cass of Michigan and James Buchanan of Pennsylvania. Cass was nominated on the fourth ballot without difficulty. But the great fight in the convention was not over nominations; it was upon the status of the two contesting delegations from New York.

The Barn-Burners
 There they were, Samuel J. Tilden, later the leader of the national Democracy, as spokesman and advocate for the Barn-Burners, and Daniel E. Sickles, the orator for the Hunkers. Tilden, only 23 years old, Sickles was already a member of the legislature and a leader in the Hunker or conservative wing of the Democratic party in New York.

The Barn-Burners were liberal Democrats, whose name was given to them because of the similarity of their doctrines in politics to the economy of the Dutch farmer who burned his barn to get rid of the rats. Some authorities, not friendly, assert that the name was derived from the depredations of certain persons in western New York, but unlike the Kentucky Night-Riders of more recent fame, the Hunkers were the conservatives, who believed in standing by the party, whatever he believed. "Hunker" is New Dutch-English for "hunger," which is akin to "hunger," and the name was applied to those of the Democrats whose desire for possession of office was more remarkable than their "hunger" and thirst after righteousness.

A Bitter Convention
 Barn-Burners and Hunkers came down to Baltimore, each swearing death against the other. Behind the Barn-Burners was the avowed shadow of Martin Van Buren, who had been the head of the greatest Democratic political machine the party had possessed. The party had defeated him for re-nomination four years previously by the imposition of the two-thirds rule, and by permitting delegates to disregard instructions. His friend, Silas Wright, had declared the vice-presidential nomination in 1814, but had saved the day by running for Governor of New York and lining up the Van Buren strength for the Polk ticket. Two years later, in 1816, Wright had been defeated for re-election as governor, and the blame was laid on the Hunkers. Van Buren and his friends wanted revenge.

The Baltimore convention was unable to decide between these bitter factions, and therefore voted to seat both delegations, giving a half-vote to each. Both sides declined to accept the compromise and refused to vote in the convention. When Lewis Cass had been nominated for President and William C. Butler for Vice President, young Dan Sickles jumped to his feet to promise the vote of New York for the nominees, making an impassioned speech which brought the attention of the whole country to him.

But the Barn-Burners went home sore. It was not long until the Free Soil movement was under way. Martin Van Buren became its candidate for President, and Charles Francis Adams was nominated for Vice President. The Abolition party was swallowed up in it. It was the first considerable movement toward the wrecking of the old sectional parties and hastening the inevitable Civil War. And when the votes were counted, General Taylor was elected and Martin Van Buren had his revenge.

General Taylor was nominated at the Whig national convention in Philadelphia. Governor Morehead of North Carolina was President of the convention and it became his duty to inform the delegates that they had been nominated. It was before the days of compulsory prepayment of postage and Governor Morehead sent the letter to General Taylor's address in Louisiana, postage collect.

Didn't Know He Was Nominated
 "Old Rough and Ready" had been getting too many letters from cranks all over the country, for some of which he was compelled to pay from 10 to 40 cents postage. Therefore he had ordered the postmaster to return all letters addressed to him and not prepay the postage. He had not read the letter from the Governor of North Carolina, and he did not know he had been nominated until the committee sent to formally notify him of his selection and which he was surprised to hear the news from the committee and the committee was surprised to learn he didn't know it before. It was the only instance on record that a formal notification to a candidate for President was genuine news.

The campaign which placed "Old Rough and Ready" in the White House was a political contest in which the winning candidate did nothing to contribute to his own success. He merely looked on while the Democrats went to pieces on the rock of the "Whimot Provision." The "provision" as it was familiarly referred to in those days was a burning issue, had brought the slavery question into national politics with a vengeance.

The famous speech was written by Remondine Brinkertoff, an Ohio Democrat. The bill to appropriate money to close negotiations with Mexico concerning the war and to acquire territory was before the House. A half-dozen anti-slavery Democrats had copies of the provision and the first one to get the Speaker's official eye was to offer it. Fate gave the opportunity to Daniel Wilson of Pennsylvania. He offered the amendment providing that slavery should not be permitted in any states or territories to be erected on or territory to be acquired from Mexico. At the first General Cass was favorable to the provision, but he soon found that it was better politics to trim, and he did so.

Upon the Wilson Provision the Democrats split wide open and gave the Whigs their last chance to elect a president. If the northern Whigs had had the courage of their convictions that year they would have taken the northern views of the slavery question and could have elected an anti-slavery President long before Lincoln was elected, and their party would have lived. But in those days the Whig party was a southern party led by

Q. Was there ever a time in American baseball when it was a rule to have to pitch more than four "balls" to give a man a base? A. M. C.

A. The number of "balls" to give a man a base was differed. In 1850, eight called balls entitled a batter to take first base. One year six balls was the rule, and at another time seven were allowed.

Q. What is the difference between climate and weather? A. E. H.
 Climate is the sum and average of weather, which includes the daily change in temperature, wind, rain, etc. The climate shows the general condition, while weather deals with special instances of changes in atmospheric conditions.

Q. How many horsepower can a propeller start without flying to pieces? E. H. D.

This vessel entered the regatta and sailed without time allowance around the Isle of Wight. The America finished first out of a large fleet of vessels. She was awarded the prize of a cup valued at $500. The owner took this cup to the New York Yacht Club to establish a perpetual challenge trophy for competition.

Q. There was still hope for compromise and permanent peace between the sections. Men could not see the inevitable conflict ahead of them.

Union between yachts of the different countries. Therefore the cup became known as "America's Cup."
Q. How many of the negroes who served in the United States Army during the World War actually went overseas? W. A. P.

Q. When did the first day of the week come to be observed as the Sabbath instead of the seventh day? E. M. V.
 The Jewish Sabbath was on the seventh day of the week, as representing the day on which God rested from the creation of the world. The first day of the week was observed by the early Christians in commemoration of the day on which Christ arose from the dead. For a long time both days were celebrated, but Constantine I, Emperor of Rome, about 321 A. D., issued an edict that the first day of the week should be observed as the Sabbath.

Pigs Is Pigs
 Let other poets chant their lays,
 As they are wont to do,
 Of slugging tilts and summer days,
 And azure skies of blue.
 Their themes are fine, they thought
 are big,
 But mine are of the lowly pig.

The birds can praise themselves in song;
 They need no help from me.
 They laud themselves the whole day long,
 From every bush and tree.
 At singing, Piggie hoots the list.
 He's not a finished vocalist.

Discordant, raucous is his tune,
 And yet I love to hear
 His voice at morning, night or noon,
 When feeding time is near.
 'Tis but a squeal it cadence shrill,
 But to my heart it brings a thrill.

I have a drop of sixty-nine;
 They're sleek and fat and nice.
 They'll top the market any time,
 And bring the highest price.
 So who can blame me if I feel
 A thrill of joy at every squeal?

Let abler poets scorn my theme,
 If it their taste offends.
 To good account I'll turn my dream,
 And—draw my dividends.
 Their dreams to no good ends will lead,
 My dreams the world will help to feed.

Quite So
 A zealous revenue officer was sleuthing through the apartment house trying to locate the private still which he suspected was on the premises. Meeting a small boy, he tried the effects of a bribe.

"Son," he said, "I'll give you a dollar if you'll show me a private still."
 "Sure," said the youth, "come along."
 The revenue man puffed wearily up all the flight of stairs until they reached the top floor. Here a door was opened and the boy pointed triumphantly to a man asleep on the bed.
 "There you are," he said, "that's my brother Fred. He's been in the army ten years and he's a private still."

By O. O. MENTIRE

NEW YORK, September 27.—All the evening at my labors and then abroad to buy a pineapple drink, very good, and fell to reading "No One," a fair mystery tale. And so to bed.

A great tragedy like that in Wall Street recently, leaves New York strangely unafflicted. Safe for the few shouting newsmen in the business district, there was nothing to disturb anything unusual. At dinner the next night I heard a man say to a change table companion opposite:

"Terrible thing, that explosion?"
 "What explosion was that?" said the other who had heard nothing about the catastrophe.

Julian Street has returned from a roving commission to Japan for a magazine. He will write the high light on it. He saw them and no one can do it quite so well. Yet his friends hope the Japanese will be kinder than the people of Cripple Creek. Street once wrote an article about that city varying particular attention to a wild red hat, thoroughfare. The city council, after the article appeared, and had changed the name of the thoroughfare to "John Street." Street is one of the ablest of the field of letters. He is wealthy and writes purely for the love of writing.

 The biggest sale of the season was on in the Azores. The vessel was two days out of Ponta Delgada but had not yet sighted Pico. At the end of the watch the weather-vane quatermaster climbed down into the midships compartment.

 "You bet," replied the Q. M. cheerfully. "We're about five miles from bottom and making good headway."

WHO'S WHO In The Days News

HARRY C. WALKER

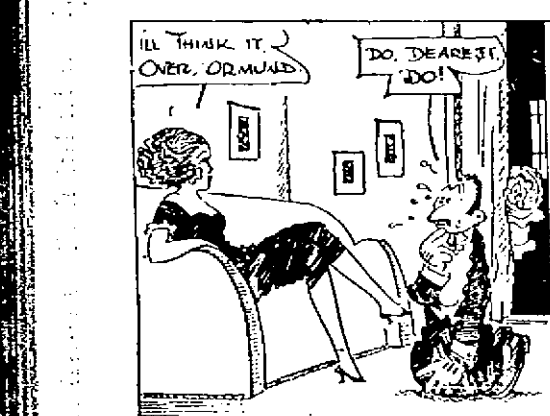

It is an interesting coincidence that the two leading candidates for U. S. senator in New York state this year happen to belong to two of the nation's oldest families. James Wadsworth, Jr., who seeks reelection as a Republican, is the fourth in the line of the Wadsworths of New York. He is a descendant of the first governor of New York, William Livingston, who was a member of the municipal civil service commission in 1917. He was elected mayor of Binghamton, and gained a reputation as a progressive chief executive.

Mr. Walker is a past grand commander of the grand commandery, Knights Templar of New York state, and a prominent Mason. His service as lieutenant governor has made him well acquainted in Albany with those having to do with legislation, or the operation of the state department there. His political specialty, so to speak, is during the summer and fall seasons. The lieutenant governor is an Episcopalian—a vestryman of Christ Episcopal church in Binghamton.

His popularity in his home county is attested by the fact that when he was for lieutenant governor two years ago he got 15,000 more votes in this county than did Alfred Smith, making it governor on the same ticket.

VIOLENT OUTBREAKS CONTINUE IN IRELAND POLES FORCED REDS TO RETIRE

Violent Explosion In Cork

CORK, Sept. 27.—A violent explosion shook this city about two o'clock this morning. It was followed by the rattle of rifle fire in various parts of the business district.

When the townspeople ventured forth later in the morning after the curfew had closed, they found the main thoroughfare, Patrick street, littered with glass, and the front of a large department store, which is said to employ a large number of young Sinn Feiners completely wrecked as if by bombs.

Windows were smashed in the upper stories of almost every store in the vicinity.

SNIPING IN BELFAST BY SINN FEINERS

BELFAST, Sept. 27.—The shooting by snipers and others which occurred in the center of Belfast last night caused a panic among the crowds proceeding on Royal avenue, the city's main artery, after church hours.

The disturbance followed the shooting of Saturday night and early Sunday in which one policeman was killed and two others were wounded, followed by the assassination of three civilians in reprisal by parties of masked men.

The opening incident of Sunday night's disorders occurred when snipers in the streets of the Sinn Fein quarter fired into the street. A team car came into the line of fire and there was great alarm among the passengers, who crouched on the floor.

The rush from the side streets caused the crowd on Royal avenue to swell to large proportions and a stampede was created, when volleys suddenly rang out apparently from the Sinn Fein side streets, the firing rapidly increasing in volume. As the crowd raced along Royal avenue in wild disorder, a number of shots were discharged, creating a panic about the Castle Street junction, the most crowded spot in the city. With the arrival of police reinforcements quieted down.

McGraw And McQuade Are To Testify

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—John J. McGraw and Magistrate Francis A. McQuade, manager and treasurer of the New York National baseball club, today accepted a telegraphic request from the Cook county, Ill., grand jury to testify in the investigation of alleged gambling. They planned to reach Chicago in time for Mr. McGraw to testify either tomorrow or Wednesday.

Mr. McQuade explained they could not be compelled to appear before the grand jury of another state but that they were both anxious to offer their services in order to "clear up this business."

New York Fog Bound

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—More than 25 large steamships, including all the battle ships of the Atlantic fleet, were anchored in the outer harbor early today, unable to leave their way through the dense fog that has enveloped this vicinity since Friday night.

A number of trans Atlantic liners, including the La Savoie, Philadelphie, the United States transport Northern Pacific, the U. S. S. Prother and others, were held on their inland voyage. Some of these have anchored since Saturday morning.

The Atlantic squadron has been attempting to enter the harbor since yesterday.

46th Day Of Hunger Strike

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork passed another bad night at Brixton prison, and was in a very weak and exhausted condition this morning, said a bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League. This is the 46th day of his hunger strike.

Ohio Towns Turn Back Their Clocks

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27.—Most Ohio municipalities which took up daylight savings last spring, either already have set their time back or will do so this week.

Cincinnati, late in October, will be the last large city to return to regular central standard time. October 1 is the date upon which most of the smaller cities which have not already done so are to turn back clocks. October 1 will mark the change of time in Toledo while Columbus is slated for central time again next Sunday.

Cleveland and other eastern and northeastern Ohio points which normally operate on eastern time did not adopt the daylight savings plan. As was the case last winter, half of Ohio will again operate on eastern and half on central time.

ROOSEVELT KEEPS BUSY

NEW YORK, September 27.—After a 24 hour rest at his Hyde Park home, following a week's tour of this state, Franklin D. Roosevelt passed through here early today enroute to New Jersey on the first day of a speech-making campaign to the Pacific coast.

The Democratic candidate for vice president was to deliver addresses today at Newark, N. J., and East Orange, returning here to train for West Virginia and thence to the far west.

RUSSIAN COUNTESS WEDS WEALTHIEST N. Y. BACHELOR

AMERICAN LEGION OPENS CONVENTION IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., September 27.—More than 1,000 delegates were in their seats in the Hippodrome Theatre this morning when Franklin D. O'Dier, national commander, called to order the second annual convention of the American Legion, approaching in importance the national sessions of the big political parties. The door of the theatre resembles one of the big political conventions, state standards and pennants designating seats allotted to the various delegations.

Commander O'Dier presented Her. Francis J. Kelly, of Troy, N. Y., the "fighting chaplain," who delivered the invocation. Following the national chaplain, Mayor William S. Fitzgerald welcomed the visitors and delegates in behalf of the city.

The convention prepared to adjourn at noon to witness the parade this afternoon of approximately 20,000 former service men and women, the feature of the three days' convention.

One of the first important matters to be presented was a report of the credentials committee. Two questions to decide are:

- 1. Shall each department be allowed only its five delegates at large and one additional delegate for each even 1,000 paid up members, or shall it be allowed one additional delegate for each 1,000 paid up members or major fraction thereof?
- 2. Shall the posts in foreign countries be allowed votes in the convention?

Pending decision of these two questions the voting strength at the convention ranged between 1,047 and 1,156.

Legion organizations in Mexico, Panama, Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, Argentine, Belgium, British Isles, Canada, Chile, China, Cuba, France, Guatemala, Japan, Poland, Samoa and Santo Domingo were involved.

The executive committee decided last night that representation in the convention should be on the basis of paid up national dues August 28 last, which on that date totaled $18,850. There was strong objection to this ruling by many states, particularly New Jersey, where it was said the membership had been increased by eleven hour efforts from 22,000 to 36,000.

National dues for more than 1,000,000 have been received now, it was said.

R. G. Crevision, director of organization for the Legion said more than 2,000,000 men have joined the Legion. He explained the disparity between that figure and the number of national dues received represent delinquents and unacknowledged payments of national dues.

It is regarded as certain that payment of national dues will be discussed in the convention in the opinion of many delegates. The present methods are too slow and involved.

How the case of the ex-service men and particularly the disabled has been championed in Washington during the past 10 months, was shown by the report of John Thomas Taylor, chairman of the national legislative committee.

In all 473 different bills were presented to the sixty-sixth congress that directly affected the veterans. The legislative committee's duty was to see that action was taken on them.

High lights in the legislative accomplishments of the legion are the Sweet bill, increasing the allowance to disabled men from $20 to $50 a month; the obtaining of $40,000,000 for hospitalization of the disabled; increase in pay of vocational training students from $50 to $100 a month; investigation of the methods of the federal board for vocational training leading to improvements; laws to expel and include aliens who are anarchists; among the bills that have passed in only the senate or the house are the Wasson bill that improves the war risk insurance act, and the adjusted compensation bill.

Other legislation that is pending covers such subjects as hospitalization, aviation, land settlement, officers retirement, sedition, alien immigration, Americanism, civil service, slackers and war risk insurance.

An instance of what the legislative committee accomplished is furnished by the case of the provisions made for the war's disabled.

The sixty-sixth congress appropriated approximately $140,000,000 for the disabled. Since the establishment of the legislative committee in Washington, the sixty-sixth congress appropriated $25,544,000.

Reduction of war risk insurance premiums, an issue to be brought before the convention will be opposed by members of the war risk bureau. It was stated by Major Grover F. Sexton of the bureau. The opposition of the bureau will be based on what members feel to be the sound business policy involved.

Colonel R. G. Chalmers-Jones, director of the bureau, will discuss change in methods of compensation and hospitalization proposed in the Wasson bill.

Equipments, motors, lubricants and the food specialties also were firm. American woolen was the only issue to record more than a fractional loss, declining 1 1/2 points.

Many of the orange beverages now being sold, it was said, consist only of sweetened carbonated water, flavored with a little oil from the peel of oranges and artificially colored.

The department of agriculture has ruled that the provisions of the pure food act will be held to have been violated in case such drinks are sold under trade names which lead the purchaser to believe they contain the edible portion or juice of the fruit named.

STRENUOUS PROGRAM FOR COX IN NEBRASKA

NORTH PLATTE, NEB., Sept. 27.—The league of nations and agricultural problems were prominent topics of Governor Cox, Democratic presidential candidate for his Nebraska campaign which opened early today at North Platte and comprised seven rural platform and two extended speeches. The latter this afternoon at Lincoln and tonight in the auditorium at Omaha.

Across the entire state, including brief state talks at Lexington, Kearney, Grand Island, Aurora, York and Seward, the governor leaving Cheyenne, Wyo., early this morning had one of the most strenuous programs of his western trip, the last week of which began today.

Nebraska Democrats laid out a gala tour for the candidate through the home state of William J. Bryan and Senator Hitchcock, administration leader in the treaty fight. W. H. Thompson of Grand Island Nebraska, a national committeeman, and others arranged to meet the governor's train at Kearney.

Governor Cox brought information to Nebraska agriculturists regarding material as well as moral interests of farmers and livestock owners in the league. The governor's matter included reports of declining exports of agricultural products which the governor ascribed to lack of European credits, falling exchange and weather conditions at home and abroad with the league presented as a stabilizing remedy for volume and prices. After his Omaha speech tonight, the governor will tour South Dakota Tuesday, visit Sioux Falls, S. D., St. Joseph, Mo., Atchison and Topeka, Kan., on Wednesday; spend Thursday in other Kansas cities, Friday in Oklahoma, and end his western "swing" Saturday at Kansas City.

Returning to Dayton next Sunday, the candidate expects to take two days rest and leave Wednesday on another trip, probably to Kentucky and Tennessee.

GROWING IN WEALTH

AUDITOR COBURN has not finally cast up the totals of the assessment of Scioto county, upon which the next taxes are to be paid, but he has gone far enough to have the assurance that Portsmouth's total will go over $50,000,000.

Most of us fail to realize the tremendous advance Portsmouth is making towards greatness, but the figures eloquently proclaim the fact. It is but a short time back when the duplicate was less than $25,000,000, now it is twice as much and equal to that of the whole county a decade ago.

These figures, coupled with a suggestion in the report of the grand jury accentuate a proposition frequently advanced in these columns, that the city and county are one and nothing that helps either can fail to help the other.

The grand jury would have road improvement pushed until four of the principal highways—it should have said five—were paved to the county lines. In this it recognized the fact that such betterment would benefit the whole county and the greater part of the cost of construction will fall upon the city, which contributes the same tax rates for roads as do the townships, though all the money derived thereby must be spent outside the city.

It is to the high credit of Portsmouth, that recognizing this condition it has never failed either in advocacy of good county roads. Indeed, had it not been for her activity and unanimity in that course there would not be a permanent road in Scioto county today. For it was she that furnished the first vote by which a special tax for permanent roads was levied, the outside at the time declaring rather emphatically there against. So while pride may be well held in the fact that Portsmouth is gaining so substantially in wealth and that she had both the foresight and liberality to lay tribute thereupon for improvement, outside her immediate confines, chief pleasure should be taken that the whole county has come to agreement that an essential factor in general progress is good roads.

INTELLIGENT DISCONTENT

ADIRECTOR of the United States department of labor employment service makes an optimistic report of employment prospects for the winter. There will be plenty of opportunities for work, he declares, and we hope that he is right. Especially agreeable is his statement that building construction is increasing, whether or not he is correct in saying that "buildings have at last come to the belief that neither labor nor buildings costs are going to decline. But we are a bit doubtful about the accuracy of his interpretation of the significance of "floating employment among workers who quit their jobs in hope of finding better ones." He argues that "the prevalence of this intelligent discontent is a good barometer of our prosperity; without a steady demand for labor, men would not risk quitting their jobs to find new ones."

An old and respected axiom warned that "it is always easier to get a job when you have one." The theory was that possession of a job proved a man capable of holding one; more, it was evidence that he was a desirable employee. That he was desirous of making a change to better his condition was held to be a further good recommendation. That showed he had ambition and a fair presumption was that he would perform faithfully and strive to establish his worthiness of advancement. But it was always a point in favor of the climber that he did not burn his bridges behind him; that he prudently stuck to one job until he had secured new employment. In other times it may not have been designated "intelligent discontent," but that is what it was.

The fellow who quit his job because he did not like it without another in sight or because he was sure he was fitted for something better that he did not know he could get always has been classified with "Mr. Micawber." The ambitious man is still in demand, but impatience with idleness and zeal in the performance of duties also are still regarded as best proofs that a man is ambitious. The man worth while never voluntarily puts himself in the position of "waiting for something to turn up."

Nearly every man imagines if he was making a lot of money most of his troubles would disappear.

A person may invent a lie that looks good to him, but it is another thing to get others to accept it.

The politicians who want to make hay while the sun shines will not waste any time taking straw votes.

One of the effects of the high cost of eating is the keenness with which an appetite can get into action.

The man who can come across with him campaign subscription without becoming cross is a real patriot.

Many a man has failed to be elected to office because he talked about so many things he knew little about.

Presidential Campaigns

By Frederic J. Haskin

The Taylor-Case-Van Buren Race of 1848

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 27.—The Whigs put their faith in a War Hero, and for the second and last time they were victorious. Zachary Taylor was nominated because he was the popular hero of the war with Mexico. It mattered not that he had never cast a vote in his life and had never taken any interest in politics. It mattered not that the war in which he won glory and renown was condemned by the Whigs as a crime against civilization. It mattered not that he was a southern slave holder when northern Whigs were beginning to battle every day against the extension of slavery. It mattered not that Henry Clay, the leader of the Whigs, again wanted the nomination from his party. Nothing mattered except that the Whigs wanted to win, that they had won in 1840 with a War Hero and an illiterate slogan, and that they could do it again. Thus to General Harrison and "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too" was added General Taylor and "Old Rough and Ready." These were the only men the Whig party ever put in the White House, and it is remarkable that they are the only two presidents who have died in office of natural causes.

But even the hearty attractiveness of General Taylor, the freshness of his war-won laurels, the magic of the memory of Buena Vista, none of these things would have availed to defeat the Democrats had it not been for the factional party fight in New York state, which ultimately resulted in the formation of the Free Soil Democratic party and the candidacy of Martin Van Buren for president. Van Buren did not carry a single state, but he got a sufficient number of votes to take more than one state away from the Democratic candidate and give its electoral vote to General Taylor.

The Democratic national convention met that year in Baltimore on May 22. The nomination for president was a race between Lewis Cass of Michigan and James Buchanan of Pennsylvania. Cass was nominated on the fourth ballot without difficulty. But the great fight in the convention was not over nominations; it was upon the status of the two contesting delegations from New York.

The Barn-burners were liberal Democrats, whose cause was given to them because of the similarity of their doctrines in politics to the economy of the Dutch farmer who burned his barn to get rid of the rats. Some authorities, not friendly to the depositions of certain persons in western New York, not unlike the Kentucky Night Riders of more recent fame. The Hunkers were the conservative, who believed in standing by the party, whatever be it. "Hunker" is New Dutch-English for "hunker," which is akin to "hunger," and the name was applied to those of the Democrats whose desire for possession of office was more remarkable than their "hunger" and their after righteousness.

A Bitter Convention
Barn-burners and Hunkers came down to Baltimore, each swearing death against the other. Behind the Barn-burners was the awful shadow of Maria Van Buren, who had been the head of the greatest Democratic political machine the party had possessed. The party had defeated him for re-nomination four years previously by the imposition of the two-thirds rule, and by permitting delegates to disregard instructions. His friend, Elias Wright, had declined the vice-presidential nomination in 1844, but had saved the day by running for Governor of New York and lining up the Van Buren strength for the Folk ticket. Two years later, in 1846, Wright had been defeated for reelection as governor, and the blame was laid on the Hunkers. Van Buren and his friends wanted revenge. The Baltimore convention was unable to decide between these bitter factions, and therefore voted to seat both delegations, giving a half-vote to each. Both sides declined to accept the compromise and refused to vote in the convention. When Lewis Cass had been nominated for President and William O. Butler for Vice President, young Dan Sickles jumped to his feet, bowed to the voters of New York, and the nominees, making an impassioned speech, which brought the attention of the whole country to him. But the Barn-burners went home sore. It was not long until the Free Soil movement was under way. Martin Van Buren became its candidate for President and Charles Francis Adams was nominated for Vice President. The Abolition party was swelling in it. It was the first considerable movement toward the wrecking of the old non-sectional parties and hastening the inevitable Civil War. And when the votes were counted, General Taylor was elected and Martin Van Buren had his revenge.

General Taylor was nominated at the Whig national convention in Philadelphia. Governor Monroë of North Carolina was President of the convention and it became his duty to inform the candidates that they had been nominated. It was before the days of compulsory preparation of postage and Governor Monroë sent the letter to General Taylor's address in Louisiana. Postage collect.

Didn't Know He Was Nominated
"Old Rough and Ready" had been getting too many letters from cranks all over the country, for each of which he was compelled to pay from 10 to 40 cents postage. Therefore he had ordered the postmaster to refuse to deliver the letters to him and not pay, to the dead letter office. Governor Monroë's letter shared this fate. Thus it happened that General Taylor did not know he had been nominated until the committee sent to formally notify him of his selection had reached his Louisiana home. He was very surprised to learn the news from the committee, and the committee went to pains to learn he didn't know it before. It was the only instance on record that a formal notification to a candidate for President was genuine news.

The campaign which placed "Old Rough and Ready" in the White House was a political contest in which the winning candidate did nothing to contribute to his own success. He merely looked on while the Democrats went to pieces on the rock of the "Willnot Inquire." The "proviso" as it was familiarly referred to in those days when it was a burning issue, had brought the slavery question into national politics with a vengeance.

The famous proviso was written by Representative Brinkhoff, an Ohio Democrat. The bill to appropriate money to clean up the Mexican territory concerning the war and to acquire territory was before the House. A half-dozen anti-slavery Democrats had copies of the proviso and the first one to get the Speaker's official eye was to offer it. Fate gave the opportunity to David Wilmont of Pennsylvania. He offered the amendment providing that slavery should not be permitted in any states or territories to be erected out of territory to be acquired from Mexico. At the first General Cass was favorable to the proviso, but he soon found that it was better politics to trim, and he did so.

Upon the Wilmont Proviso the Democrats split wide open and gave the Whigs their last chance to elect a president. If the northern Whigs had had the courage of their convictions that year they would have taken the northern views of the slavery question and could have elected an anti-slavery President long before Lincoln was elected, and their party would have lived. But in those days the Whig party was a southern party led by northern men. There was still hope for compromise and permanent peace between the sections. Men could not see the inevitable conflict ahead of them.

NEW YORK, September 27.—A page from the diary of a modern Sam Pepys: Up and heard that Chaplin, the cinema comedian, was living on the floor above and many servers from the public journals were there but the fellow was shy and did not come out. To the dentist where I had a tooth drawn with no pain sover. Meeting my wife, we had breakfast at an underground place and I had three helping of waffles with honey. Gibson, the great artist, was at a table alone and a fine figure of a man he is and I hear he has never used tobacco or touched wine. 'Tou I saw a man with a lady and both rightly ashamed, although I appeared not to see them.

For a walk in the shop section and I was persuaded to forgive a fellow who had done me a hurt and felt better for it. Met Hamafora, the circus rider, and he showed me a pipe made of an elephant's tusk, finely carved, and set with jewels. I also saw Akon, the explorer; H. Miller, the play actor, and W. Lippmann, the editor.

The biggest gale of the season was on in the Azores. The vessel was two days out of Ponta Delgada but had not yet sighted Pico. At the end of the watch the weather-wary quartermaster climbed down into the midships compartment.

"Do you know where we are now?" inquired the striker for the gunner's mate, taking his attention momentarily from the game that is occasionally played with lumps of sugar.

"You bet," replied the Q. M. cheerlessly. "We're about five miles from bottom and making good headway."

Quite So
A zealous rescue officer was sleuthing through the apartment house trying to locate the private still which he suspected was on the premises. Meeting a small boy, he tried the effects of a bribe.

"Son," he said, "I'll give you a dollar if you'll show me a private still."

"Sure," said the youth, "come along." The revenue man puffed wearily up all the flight of stairs until they reached the top floor. Here a door was opened and the boy pointed triumphantly to a man asleep on the bed.

"There you are," he said. "That's my brother Fred. He's been in the army ten years and he's a private still."

All the evening at my labours and then abroad to buy a pie-appe drink. Very good, and fell to reading "No time," a fair mystery tale. And so to bed.

A great tragedy like that in Wall Street recently, leaves New York strangely untroubled. Save for the few shouting newboys in the business district, there was nothing to indicate anything unusual. At dinner the same night I heard a man say to a chance table companion opposite:

"Terrible thing, that explosion?"

"What explosion was that?" said the other who had heard nothing about the catastrophe.

Julian Street has returned from a roving commission to Japan for a magazine. He will write the high lights as he saw them and no one can do it quite so well. Yet his friends hope the Japanese will be kinder than the people of Cripple Creek. Street once wrote an article about that city paying particular attention to a wild red light thoroughfare. The city council, after the article appeared, met and changed the name of the thoroughfare to "Julian Street." Street is one of the tacticians of the field of letters. He is wealthy and writes purely for the love of writing.

The hulu of his foot-ball days at Princeton, his smile and the rugged physique contribute to the unbounded charm. With it all, he seems unspoiled. The Big fellows always seem to get the attention. In another hotel today I saw Col. E. M. House. Not a half dozen eyes were lifted in his direction. It would be difficult to imagine a crowd standing around cheering Col. So far in action has been taken looking toward their arrest. On the other hand, those opposed to the Sunday opening of amusement places, say that there is a law against the opening and that it can and will be enforced.

Notices of arrest for the first offense were made shortly after the shows opened Sept. 19 and after affidavits had been filed against the managers.

Saturday the Sunday amusement proposition was brought to the attention of Safety Director, St. Straus, Mayor William Gableman and Chief of Police Doherty, a letter being received by Mr. Straus stating that copies had been ordered sent to the mayor and chief of police. The letter was from the office of Blair and Blair, and called the attention of the city officials to the law governing Sunday amusements and adding that action could be taken against officials who did not see to it that the law was carried out.

This morning when Mayor Gableman was asked concerning the letter, he said that he did not receive any, but that he had heard of one received by Mr. Straus, and added that the city officials were taking their instructions from the city solicitor and not the law firm of Blair and Blair.

Mr. Straus, in speaking of the letter said that he had received it and that he had turned it over to the chief of police. The safety director said that the way he understood the law was that arrests could be made twenty

Start Run On Bank In Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Several hundred persons gathered outside the offices of the Tremont Trust company here today when the doors were opened at 8:45 a. m. 15 minutes before the usual hour and lines quickly formed at the several paying tellers windows.

After withdrawals had been going on steadily for nearly an hour with the crowd constantly increasing, the bank officials announced that the law permitting a bank to require 90 days notice for withdrawals from the savings departments would be invoked forthwith "for the protection of the depositors."

The regulation would be withdrawn "as soon as the public calmed itself," it was announced.

"We have plenty of money to pay everybody," officials said, "and were prepared to do so this morning; but the crowd became so large that it was impossible to handle them and we invoked the law for the protection of the depositors, not for our own protection."

Upon opening for business today, the Fidelity Trust company served notice on depositors that it would take advantage of the law permitting it to require 90 days notice of withdrawal from its savings department.

It was stated at the bank that the candidate will arrive late this afternoon and will deliver his first public address at 8 o'clock at the City Hall. The Knights Templar will turn out in a body and will have charge of the services at the grave. Members of the various fire companies will also attend the last rites of this gallant fire fighter for more than 30 years.
